Sociology Collection Development Policy

University Libraries, University of Nebraska-Lincoln

David C. Tyler, Sociology Liaison Librarian, December? 2009

Approved: CDC December 2, 2009

I. GENERAL ACADEMIC PROGRAM INFORMATION

The sociology collection supports the teaching, research and service activities of the entire university community. Its primary audience is the faculty, staff, and students of the Department of Sociology in the College of Arts and Sciences. Its primary focus is support for the undergraduate and graduate curricula for sociology. Specific and transient research needs of sociology faculty and graduate students should be supplemented through Interlibrary Loan. Materials are not purchased for the general public, though they may benefit from the collection. While the collection focuses on works classified in Sociology (HM) – Social Pathology. Social and Public Welfare. Criminology (HV), curriculum and research support is also provided by works classified as belonging to, for example, Social Sciences (General), Statistics, Demography, Gerontology, Environmental Psychology, Human Ecology, Education, Psychology/Psychiatry, Public Health, and so forth. Works classified as belonging to Religion, History, Law, Technology, Language (e.g., communication studies, mass media, sociolinguistics, etc.), Science (e.g., information theory, network analysis, mathematical statistics, history of science, etc.), Technology (e.g., technological change), and so forth may also be pertinent.

Sociology Department

As the department notes on its Web page, a “major of sociology within the College of Arts and Sciences is a flexible program”, and the undergraduate program aims to provide its students with valuable opportunities and skills that they may benefit from and take with them to any future program: “The opportunity to learn, to think objectively and creatively, to write and speak effectively, to analyze data, and to more fully appreciate and understand social and cultural differences among people.” The undergraduate major in sociology is very flexible and requires at least 30 hours of sociology, which includes 5-6 required courses. The remainder of the major may be constructed to suit individual student’s interests and educational objectives. Sociology also offers a minor to students from other departments in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The graduate-level program at Nebraska, however, is very much research oriented and, in addition to providing a broad course, provides in depth training in pure and applied research. According to departmental Web pages, the main areas of concentration for the department are as follows: Family, Health/Mental Health/Substance Abuse, Social Inequalities (Race, Ethnicity, Class, Gender), and Survey Research/Quantitative Methods. Additional areas of study for the department are: Aging and The Life Course, Crime and Deviance, Demography, Education, Environmental Sociology, Religion, Social Change, Social Psychology, and Sociological Theory. The department’s particular strengths are its programs on the sociology of the family, on inequalities, and on the sociology of health.

As of the Fall of 2009, the department was comprised of nineteen full-time faculty listed as members of the department and four part-time faculty listed as lecturers. Of the nineteen full-time faculty, four are cross-listed as members of the Institute for Ethnic Studies, three are cross-listed as faculty for the Women's and Gender Studies Program, and three are cross-listed as faculty for the graduate-level Survey Research and Methodology Program. A review of the departmental faculty Web pages discovered the following areas of interest:

- Family (11), including listings for: Child Abuse and Neglect; Adolescence; Foster Youth, Homeless Youth & Their Families; High-Risk Behaviors Among Adolescents; and High-Risk Children and Adolescents;
- Methodology (11), including listings for: Survey Methodology (2), Quantitative Methods (2), Qualitative and Ethnographic Methods (2), Statistical Methodology, Interviewer Effects, Measurement Error, and Nonresponse Error;
- Sociology of Health/Medical Sociology (9), including listings for: Sociology of Mental Health (5), Sociology of Health (3), and Medical Sociology;
- Race and Ethnic Studies (6), including listings for: Chicano/Latino Studies, Minority/Majority Relations, and Race Relations;
- Stratification (6), including listings for: Social Inequality: Race/Ethnicity, Class, and Gender (2); Race/Ethnic/Minority Inequality; Poverty and Inequality; and Inequality (Intersectionality);
- Deviance (4), including listings for: Criminology, violence, and victimization;
- Gender (4);
- Education (3), including listings for: minorities in higher education and sociology of urban education;
- Demography (2);
- International Migration (2);
- Religion (2);
- Social Change/Social Movements (2); and
- Chicago Sociology, Contextual Analysis, Culture, Disability, Drug and Alcohol Prevention, Environmental Sociology, History of Sociology, Immigrant Communities, Politics, Social Psychology, and Theory (Classical & Contemporary) (1 listing each).

The Department of Sociology offers a B.A. at the undergraduate level and a minor to students from other departments in the College of Arts and Sciences. A B.S. degree may also be available; however, the department does not address it on their Web page. At the graduate level, the department offers an M.A. and a Ph.D.

In the fall of 2008, the department reported 126 undergraduate majors studying for the B.A. degree and four studying for the B.S., eighteen graduate students studying for the M.A., and twenty-five studying for the Ph.D. The department's course offerings are very popular with students fulfilling their general education and elective requirements: the department reported 6,476 credit hours in the fall of 2008, of which 5,433 were offered at the 100- and 200-levels. In addition to providing the usual classroom offerings, the department's faculty and students are also affiliated with several nationally-known research centers and programs, including the Bureau of Sociological Research; the Environmental Studies Program; the aforementioned Institute for Ethnic Studies; the American Sociological Association's Section of the Sociology of Mental Health; Gallup, Inc.; the Preparing Future Faculty Program; the aforementioned Women's and Gender Studies Program; and the Survey, Statistics and Psychometrics (SSP) Core Facility. At various times, the faculty may be involved in the "University Honors Program"

UNL Program of Excellence, and the faculty are also involved in the following funded UNL Programs of Excellence: “Behavioral Health” and “Survey Methodology and Statistics”.

The department offers the following Achievement-Centered Education (ACE) certified sociology courses for general education:

SOCI 101 Introduction to Sociology
SOCI 189H University Honors Seminar
SOCI 200 Women in Contemporary Society
SOCI 201/[201] Social Problems
SOCI 206 Introduction to Social Research II
SOCI 209 Sociology of Crime
SOCI 217 Nationality and Race Relations (ETHN 217)
SOCI 225 Marriage and the Family
SOCI 495 Senior Seminar

For additional information on the department, its activities and programs, and its history, please see the following: <http://soc.unl.edu/>

II. GEOGRAPHICAL COVERAGE

With respect to sociology, the UNL Libraries should have no geographical limitations. Given the department’s interests, however, some preference may be given to works on North, South, and Central America.

III. CHRONOLOGICAL COVERAGE

There should be no chronological limitations. Studies pertaining to modern society and to the history of sociology are of interest and should be collected in compliance with the collection intensity levels designated above. Studies pertaining to pre-modern society may be governed by the appropriate collection development policies (e.g., Nineteenth-Century Studies, Medieval and Renaissance Studies, etc.).

IV. IMPRINT DATE

Primary emphasis should be on current imprints. Retrospective purchasing should be concentrated in those areas collected at the Research Level and should emphasize the completion of major sets, the acquisition of highly pertinent but not widely disseminated research reports, and/or the works of highly influential sociologist and social theorists. Retrospective purchasing for materials designated as being collected at the Study Level and below should be highly selective.

V. FORMAT

Print Materials

Most materials are acquired in the form of periodicals, series, and monographs. Sociological research is also heavily reliant on technical/methodological reports, occasional papers, and research reports released by universities, research centers, and state and federal agencies, which form a significant portion of the field’s output. Many of these items are published in paperback, and some are spiral bound. The collection should also include the proceedings and symposia of the major associations. Reference works dealing with the methodology, the history of the field, and social history, generally, should be collected. Given the field's wide-ranging interests, abstracting and indexing services for sociology and for numerous related fields are desirable. Textbooks are not normally collected, unless they are of "classic" stature, are of graduate level, and/or have been requested by faculty; lower-level textbooks should not be collected. Non-UNL dissertations and theses may be collected very selectively, but such works are not a priority for the collection.

Non-Print Materials

With respect to periodicals/serials and to reference works, preference should be given to materials available online or in dual print/online format, especially if such materials are free of continuing "maintenance" fees and if such materials allow for simultaneous access.

Microformat collections, especially microfiche, are rarely collected; if funding allows, preference should be given to affordable online versions of such collections, especially if they offer value-added features such as full-text searching.

VI. LANGUAGES

English is the preferred language at all levels of collection intensity. Works in other languages may be collected selectively. No work should automatically be excluded on the basis of language alone. English translations are preferred, but translations into any of the major European languages may also be acceptable.

VII. LIBRARY COLLECTIONS

To support the sociology program, the library collection offers a wide range of materials on theory, methodology, technology and practices, history, race relations, social problems, environmental science, immigration and emigration, public health, area studies, and so forth. Generally speaking, Research Level/Study Level collections should be maintained for Sociology, Research Methods in the Social Sciences (including Statistics [HA]), Family Studies, Women's and Gender Studies, Social Pathology and Criminology, Public Health, Race Relations and Urban Sociology, and Immigration and Emigration. Study Level/Basic Level collections should be maintained for Sociology of Religion, Political and Economic Sociology, Demography, Sociology of Education, Social History, Social Psychology, Environmental Science and Human Ecology/Anthropogeography. A Basic Level/Minimal Level collection should be maintained for Information Science, Secret Societies, Sociobiology, Sociolinguistics, the Sociology of Law, Technology and Society, and so forth. To a lesser extent, the collection also provides information on careers.

Collections in some of these areas are guided by other collection development policies, including those written for Anthropology; Business; Criminal Justice; Economics; Education; Environmental Science; Family Studies; History; Law; Medicine and Dentistry; Multicultural Studies; Native American Studies; Nineteenth Century Studies; Political Science; and so forth.
